As the managing principal and a principal respectively, of the Frederick office of law firm Miles & Stockbridge, Welty and Lynch have a wealth of knowledge when it comes to the area and its history—indeed, for many residents and businesses, they are part of that history.

But while their reputation is rooted in the past, the firm and its leaders are also embracing their prospects for the future.

“We are best known for our comprehensive legal and business counseling and our success in helping all types of business succeed—from large manufacturers, entrepreneurs and real estate entities to financial institutions and family farms,” Welty said. “To be successful, we make it our job to understand how our clients’ businesses operate.”

According to Welty and Lynch, Miles & Stockbridge offers a full spectrum of legal services, with extensive experience in commercial and real estate transactions, business and estate planning and litigation. With more than 225 lawyers working in seven Mid-Atlantic offices, the firm provides deep experience in legal matters related to corporate counseling and transactions, labor and employment, intellectual property, government contracts, products liability and financial institutions.

The future looks bright for the firm, as it is expanding its West Patrick Street offices in Frederick in anticipation of adding new lawyers to its team.

Welty points to Miles & Stockbridge’s people as a key driver behind the firm’s success.

“We have very capable lawyers and staff who are proud to be a part of the rich legal history of the Frederick community,” he said. “Our lawyers are quite adept at working with our firm’s other offices across the region, and we have the client service commitment and technology in place to support these efforts well.”

Lynch noted that the Frederick County Chamber of Commerce has played an integral role in supporting them over the years.

“All of this could not have been possible without the county’s commitment to economic development with the support and encouragement of the Frederick County Chamber of Commerce, the trusted voice for business in this county for more than 100 years.”
