Molly Ferraioli uses her extensive knowledge of the health care industry to help hospitals, health systems and their affiliated providers (including physician group practices, ambulatory care facilities, hospices and home health agencies) navigate complex regulatory compliance issues to achieve their business objectives.

Molly has deep experience advising a variety of health care providers on fraud and abuse laws (e.g., the Anti-Kickback Statute and the Stark Law); Medicare and Medicaid reimbursement issues; privacy laws (e.g., HIPAA, HITECH and state laws); and health care licensure, certification and accreditation issues. She also routinely provides legal advice pertaining to health care transactions, including acquisitions, affiliations, and joint ventures, physician and vendor contracts and governing documents, as well as guides clients through government investigations involving compliance with health care laws.

For hospitals in Maryland, Molly's thorough understanding of the state's unique hospital reimbursement system provides an additional lens through which she approaches legal issues and provides strategic advice.
